Human resource development in rural areas in Ninh Binh

Nguyen Thi Anh Tuyet

Major: Political Economics
Publishing year: 2014
Supervisor: Dr. Nguyen Huu So

Aims and objectives of the study:

- Aims of the study:
  Analyze the theory and reality of human resource development, investigate Ninh Binh rural human resource development situation and give recommendations for the next few years.

- Objectives of the study:
  + Clarify the theory on rural human resource development
  + Analyze Ninh Binh rural human resource development situation and influential factors.
  + Give recommendations to develop Ninh Binh rural human resource for the next few years.

Contributions of the thesis:

In the last few years, numerous researches on human, human resource and human resource development have been conducted. However, none of them are on human resource development in rural areas in Ninh Binh province.

Therefore, this thesis is a particular research on a new topic. Based on the findings of former researches on human resource, the thesis was done systematically, logically and independently. It additionally investigated some practical matters in developing rural human resource from 2010 to 2012 in Ninh Binh.

In the process of researching, the author used general methodology of Dialectical Materialism and Historical Materialism, and others such as analysis and synthesis, statistics and comparison, systematization, logical and historical combination based on both theories and reality, modeling methodology, etc.

In spite of some drawbacks, the thesis made a standout contribution. Based on the systematization of some theoretical matters on human resource in general and rural human resource in particular, the researcher made a rudimental assessment on rural human resource situation in Ninh Binh. Then she also gave recommendations to develop it in the next few years.

In addition, the thesis could be used as a source of reference for Ninh Binh authorities and for academic purposes.